

BUSINESS STUDIES DEPARTMENT

The Business Studies department has six members of staff, including the Head of Department. All staff contribute to the work and resources of the department and work together effectively. The department has a distinct and readily recognisable character while seeking to deliver the distinctive mission so important to Loreto College staff and students.

We now seek an enthusiastic, innovative and committed teacher, who will contribute to the teaching of GCE A Level courses within the area.

The department offers EDUQAS A Level Business Studies.

The Business Department is committed to enrichment. The Department runs internal competitions such as this year's Micro-Tyco enterprise challenge and organises visit from external speakers and trips to enable students to experience businesses first-hand.

The Business Studies department is committed to achieving the highest standards of teaching and learning through outstanding and innovative teaching and use of ILT. The successful candidates will require the ability to employ a variety of teaching methods and have a strong interest in contributing to the area's teaching and learning resources. A strong commitment to the students and the ability to work successfully as a member of a team are essential requirements, as is the ability to be pro-active. All members of the team have departmental as well as teaching responsibilities.

Student achievement and value-added over the last three years have been excellent and are continuing to improve. The College was judged 'outstanding' in its most recent OFSTED inspection and awarded Grade 1 in all categories and has Beacon College Status.

More information on the department can be found on the college website:
<http://www.loreto.ac.uk/content/business-studies>