

December 2016

Dear Colleague,

Full-time Teacher of English from March 2017 until Christmas and possibly beyond

Thank you for your interest in this important post which will be to cover a maternity post. English is one of our strongest, most vibrant departments and we hope to appoint a new member to it who will make a considerable contribution to its further success.

Balcarras is a good place to teach, with friendly, committed colleagues, keen pupils, supportive parents and a consistent focus upon professional development. Facilities are first rate and the English department is well equipped. You will be assured of a warm welcome and excellent support throughout your first year, both in the department and across the school.

We are looking to appoint a new colleague with a real love of English and of teaching English. We can offer the chance to teach A-level and lots of other opportunities, from the outset.

Having perused the details and our website, I hope you will be keen to apply. Please submit an application form by Monday December 12th at 12 noon. Interviews will take place on Thursday December 15th.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Yours sincerely,

Headteacher
