PROGRESSION TO UPPER PAY SPINE

The above is the basic job description for all classroom teachers. Teachers will be expected to continue to develop throughout their careers. Progression to the Upper Pay Spine (threshold) is a reward for a range of good practice including performance in the classroom, and in order to continue to move onto UPS2 and UPS3, this high level of performance must be sustained.

In the early years of a teaching career a classroom teacher will need to develop beyond these basic requirements in order to pass through the threshold. Below are some of the skills, attributes and attitudes that will need to be developed to move onto the Upper Pay Spine.

Core Requirements

- To contribute to the development of departmental and school policies.
- To take lead responsibility for an aspect of the department or the school's work (this could even be leadership of a small subject), and develop plans and identify clear targets and success criteria for its development and/or maintenance.

Planning, Teaching and Classroom Management

- Develop the capacity to reflect upon current practice and thus be able to understand clearly, and therefore apply, very effective classroom management, employ a wide range of teaching strategies and be able to target and support individual learning needs effectively.
- Consistently maintain high levels of behaviour and discipline.
- Demonstrate the ability to bring appropriate and consistent progress from most of the pupils taught across the age and ability range, and from a full spectrum of backgrounds.
- To be able to manage effectively support staff and other adults in the classroom.
- To show the ability to mentor trainee teachers.

Monitoring, Assessment, Recording and Reporting

- To be able to understand and manipulate performance data in order to evaluate pupils' progress and thereby set appropriate targets for improvement.

Other Professional Requirements

- To be knowledgeable of, and take account of, wider curriculum developments.
- Incorporate, as appropriate, national strategies in all teaching.
- To take responsibility for continued professional learning, undertaking personal development to enhance the teaching and learning of pupils, and then applying it successfully in the classroom, and subsequently sharing that with colleagues.

1. The above responsibilities are subject to the general duties and responsibilities contained in the statement of Conditions of Employment.
2. This job description is not necessarily a comprehensive definition of the post. It will be reviewed as necessary as part of the appraisal process and it may be subject to modification or amendment at any time after consultation with the holder of the post.
3. Because of the nature of this job, if you are successful in your application you will be subject to a criminal record check from the Criminal Records Bureau before the appointment can be confirmed. This will be done by means of applying for an 'Enhanced Disclosure'. Disclosures include details of cautions, reprimands or final warnings as well as convictions, spent or unspent.
4. Every member of staff has a responsibility to safeguard and promote the welfare of children.
