

English

There are five teachers in the English department and the team represents a blend of youth and experience, with varied interests across a range of literature. It is a supportive environment, and the successful candidate will have the opportunity to join a dynamic and effective team. Having recently redeveloped all key stage schemes of work, we meet regularly to share both best practice and effective resources. Research-based teaching methods are at the heart of what we do and to that end, in partnership with King's College, University of London, we deliver the 'Let's Think in English' programme of study in Year 7.

We are proud of our tradition of academic success. At Key Stage 4, Eltham College follows Edexcel iGCSE English Language and iGCSE English Literature (9 to 1). We teach in mixed-ability sets and our pupils sit their examinations at the end of the two-year course. At A level, we currently deliver the OCR English Literature course to the Upper Sixth and the equivalent Eduqas syllabus to our current Lower Sixth. There are normally over 40 students pursuing the course in the Sixth Form, with two or three classes in both year groups. A number of our students go on to study English at elite universities, with two this year having been offered a place to study at the University of Oxford. Members of the department provide regular intervention sessions to provide targeted support for students as well as delivering regular extension lectures.

Outside the classroom, the English department leads a large number of co-curricular activities. There are regular clubs such as Creative Writing, Scrabble, Debating and Wider Reading. We also enjoy organizing one-off activities, such as our recent celebration of World Book Day. Eltham College is able to take advantage of the close proximity to Central London and there are numerous trips organized to West End theatres, the BFI, and literary lectures. Recent years have also seen a number of external speakers visit the school, such as John Stallworthy and Andrew Motion.

The department is fortunate to teach in extremely well positioned classrooms at the heart of the school. In our classrooms, ICT is one of the many tools the department employs to keep its teaching dynamic, effective and fun. We are fortunate to enjoy a fruitful relationship with our school librarian and work together to organise reading groups, lecture competitions, and visiting authors.
