- to communicate and interpret agreed guidelines and practices to students
- to communicate effectively with parents and colleagues on a day-to-day basis.

This is an important, demanding and time-consuming role which makes a significant contribution to the achievement of students. It is essential that applicants for teaching posts understand that they will be required to be Personal Tutors and therefore must endorse this philosophy.

"Teachers know their subjects well. They have developed a clear culture of learning and respect with their pupils for whom they obviously care deeply"

Information about the Creative Faculty

The Creative Faculty is an exciting and diverse part of the school, led by experienced practitioners who inspire and challenge our students in a friendly, inclusive and practice-led environment. The nature of the work we do often means that student participation, both in and out lesson time, is celebrated through visual displays and performances. The faculty has been involved in a number of projects with the local feeder primary schools, more recently hosting the National Youth Jazz Orchestra and an art exhibition on Jazz displayed at the Station in Richmond. The faculty is keen to develop these wider community links further through engagement within the Arts.

The Creative Department currently comprises three separate subjects: Art, Physical Education and Music but as of September 2018 the college will extend this faculty by introducing Drama to our students. This is an exciting time for the college and one which will enhance the experience of students through their engagement in drama to build confidence and self-esteem.

In these departments students in Key Stage 3 are taught a variety of topics that encourage development of practical skills through a varied curriculum.

In Key Stage 4 students will be able to opt for individual Creative subjects. Although each of the art forms is a very discreet subject, the team work closely together and this is reflected in the many collaborative events that take place throughout the year.

We are committed to putting our students first by providing them with a creative environment that will prepare them for successful careers in their fields and will develop their critical thinking through doing and making.

"I have worked at Risedale for 18 years and have seen the school grow throughout this time. It is a fantastic place to work, with a very supportive staff team. The Creative Faculty is going through exciting times as the department grows, offering a wide range of creative opportunities for the students and staff alike."

Sarah Cox – Associate Assistant Principal, Head of Creative Faculty
