DUTIES SPECIFIC TO UPPER PAY SCALE TEACHERS
The Trust works within national guidelines and the UPS criteria to assess staff wishing to be considered for Threshold Progression. To satisfy the requirements of the Upper Pay Scale, teachers are expected to be highly competent and be making contributions to the school that are substantial and sustained. ‘Highly competent’ means performance which is not only good but often outstanding and also enough to provide coaching and mentoring to other teachers, give advice to them and demonstrate to them effective teaching practice and how to make a wider contribution to the work of the school, in order to help them meet the relevant standards and develop their teaching practice.

'Substantial' means of real importance, validity or value to the school; playing a critical role in the life of the school; providing a role model for teaching and learning; making a distinctive contribution to the raising of pupil / student standards; taking advantage of appropriate opportunities for professional development and using the outcomes effectively to improve pupil's / student's learning.

'Sustained' means maintained continuously over a period not shorter than four academic years (not including the NQT year). The result of this is that a teacher may acquire UPS status a year earlier than previously possible.

In Northworthy Trust schools, highly competent teachers continually secure good or better progress of their classes and they contribute widely to the school. This means that they:

- are working at an enhanced level,
- are able to effectively support other teachers in the school and Trust and can demonstrate the impact of their support, advice and guidance on the development of others.

In Northworthy Trust schools, substantial means more than what is expected of a main pay scale teacher. There is a very real difference between a teacher on UPS and those colleagues on MPS. This means that a UPS teacher is making a substantial impact because they:

- promote the ethos and vision of the school in their day to day work by their work in classes and around the school;
- actively support school policy and practice and support senior colleagues in ensuring other staff work to agreed policy in their own practice;
- secure good or better outcomes for their classes and therefore contribute, more than a main pay scale teacher, to the raising of pupil / student standards;
- contribute to the wider life of the school and actively support strategies aimed at school improvement.

A teacher on UPS needs to sustain their performance as measured against the progression criteria and the supporting notes above. They will need to gather evidence which shows them sustaining this level of teacher. It will also be important to demonstrate how they have taken on further responsibilities across the school, in addition to any paid responsibility.

The overall work of a teacher on UPS will need to show that:

- their achievement and contribution to school has been substantial and sustained;
- they have continued to meet post-threshold requirements;
- they have grown professionally by developing teaching expertise post-threshold

In practice, this means that when a teacher enters UPS, they need to continue improving and demonstrating that the high standards of the Upper Pay Scale are maintained and that they are continuing to develop professionally by contributing to the school on a wider basis. Movement or progression is ordinarily every two years unless in exceptional circumstances.

The Northworthy Trust uses the UPS criteria as a framework. The following provides some further details regarding a teacher on UPS:

- Their teaching is allowing pupils / students to make good or better progress
- They model and support other teachers by:
 - providing advice and guidance to other teachers so that the practice of others can improve
 - being actively engaged in coaching and mentoring other colleagues
 - team teaching with other staff
 - supporting others in planning and developing their subject knowledge
 - modelling effective practice by accepting other teachers into their classrooms
 - contributing to whole school professional development activities.
- They are model learners themselves which means they:
 - continue to develop themselves and their pedagogy through effective CPD
 - have excellent subject knowledge and continue to keep this up to date in order to inform their practice and that of others

- They support the ethos and culture of the school and promote collective responsibility by:
 - supporting school policies around the school, in lessons and in unstructured times
 - understanding that they have a responsibility outside of the classroom to support activities and strategies aimed at promoting the ethos of the school.
