ENGLISH CURRICULUM OVERVIEW

The English department is a high performing and friendly place to work. We are a successful curriculum area that work closely together and are supportive of each other. Our curriculum area incorporates English, Media, Film and EAL. As such it is a vibrant and exciting team to work in with opportunities to teach some of the other subject areas if interested.

The English curriculum provides a diverse, engaging and challenging curriculum that ensures all students are able to meet and exceed their potential, supported by staff who have the highest professional standards. Our curriculum is academic and rigorous, while guided by the principles of personalised learning. Considerable work has been done on curriculum development. This work reflects the diversity of our students and the cultural aspirations we wish to inspire. For example in Year 7 there is a unit on Classical myths and stories from the Bible and in Year 9, students read and study The Purple Hibiscus. There are well planned schemes of work. Teaching is flexible, adaptable and closely matched to individual students' needs. There is a strong focus on assessment ensuring all students make outstanding progress. We aim to foster students' creative, analytical and critical skills through innovative approaches to learning and teaching. Challenging teaching and learning enables students to develop confidence and competence in reading, writing, speaking and listening, within a variety of contexts. We strive to incorporate a range of highly engaging literary texts into our curriculum, so that we communicate and develop in students a passion for literature and a strong academic as well as aspirational approach to learning. There is a culture of high expectations and 'no excuses' which is reflected in the commitment to mixed ability teaching. At GCSE the AQA syllabus is followed and at A Level, Edexcel.

Our students learn to interrogate the world around them, and to consider a range of issues through collaborative, critical and independent thought. Students develop an understanding of a range of social, cultural and global issues through a range of different text types and genres. We encourage students to take risks and independent ownership of their learning. Drawing on the knowledge and experience of excellent teachers across core and foundation subjects, students receive the highest standards of education as they develop into young adults in an ever-changing and challenging global environment. Every student will be equipped with the skills relevant to life, work and study beyond Chelsea Academy.

The English department is a group of wonderful, dynamic and hard working individuals who work together to deliver outstanding progress for all students. All students enjoy English at Chelsea Academy and have consistently achieved excellent GCSE and A Level results. In fact, our results frequently put us as one of the highest performing departments at the Academy.
