Philosophy & Religion

The post is open to all potential candidates. If candidates have any previous teaching experience, please state previous grades in the application form.

The post has arisen due to large growth within the Humanities department with further potential for future growth. Law has achieved outstanding results with 63% of the Law students achieving A*-A and 81% achieving A*-B in August 2019. Over 75% of the Law cohort in 2019 have enrolled at university to study Law. The successful candidate will continue to develop the provision to meet and exceed the current success. The successful candidate will be an inspiring teacher with a passion for teaching Law who will create a positive proactive ethos within their lessons. The wider department has a highly experienced and talented team who foster co-operation and sharing good practice with supportive management which has teaching and learning at its heart. It is an advantage if the candidate could teach another subject to ensure flexibility within the team.

The courses within the department offer a wide variety of enrichment activities including a highly successful "Tomorrows Lawyers" Programme which provides students with outstanding work experience in their chosen area of Law. Furthermore, the department offers national and international trips, where students are given the opportunity to enhance their study within the academic area, making the topics realistic and enabling students to relate them to the real world. Opportunities for research, which supports many of the courses within the department, are particularly relevant and current. Students are visited by guest speakers from various organisations and public services, who often set workshops and assignments based on current issues throughout the curriculum areas. Close links have been made with many of the universities within the area; including the Universities of Liverpool, Manchester, Lancaster, Liverpool John Moores and Manchester Metropolitan.

The department runs gifted and talented partnerships with local high schools, which give the students and prospective students the opportunity to participate in extracurricular activities to challenge and stretch them.

This post offers an excellent opportunity for a talented, creative and innovative teacher with the skills and dedication to enthuse and inspire students to achieve highly in Law.
