

An introduction to Providenciales Middle School:

Mr Toby Barkworth-Knight, Director

Mr Jason McCreedy, Middle School Principal

Providenciales Primary & Middle School is an independent community school in the Turks and Caicos Islands. Our Primary School has operated on Providenciales for over 30 years, with our Middle School opening five years ago. Our school prides itself on the delivery of a creative and inspiring curriculum that is designed to stimulate the learning of all pupils. All children possess unique skills and intelligences and we aim to value and challenge these equally. We firmly believe that the emergence of a child's interests and academic abilities is best supported by an environment that nurtures exploration, inquiry and imagination.

Our balanced approach to curriculum planning encourages high academic achievement in Literacy, Numeracy, Science and beyond. Opportunities to apply the skills learned in these disciplines - through a creative, topic-based approach to learning - allow all pupils to consolidate their knowledge in challenging contexts. We place particular value on breadth of learning and all pupils enjoy opportunities to develop in Music, Drama, Dance, Art & Design and PE in an environment that celebrates success across the curriculum equally.

Children's social and emotional development is critically important in their relationships and personal growth. An understanding of their place within a community - whether locally, nationally or globally - is fundamental to developing a sense of empathy and belonging. We believe that our provision allows our pupils understand themselves and their place within the world around them.

Providenciales Primary & Middle School strives to be a place of learning for all. Through an inclusive approach to all learners, we enjoy supporting our pupils as they grow in confidence while developing their unique talents.
